What Is What in Topeka Home Vegetable Gardens.

Varieties That Are Most Popular Among "City Farmers."

in Entire Season.

peas, turnips, onions, radishes, lettuce and tomatoes.

The amount of seed of any one variety planted in a season fluctuates because of climatic conditions. For example, one Topeka seed house—and there are several reliable seed firms in this city—sells anywhere from 200 to 500 neurods of turnip seed in a season. this city—sells anywhere from 200 to 500 pounds of turnip seed in a season. Following a dry "spell" there is always a rush for turnip seed. There is an old adage, "sow turnips the 25th of July wet or dry." At any rate, a large percentage of seed is sold between the first of July and August 15. If the summer season is unusually dry, turnip planting is delayed. In fact, turnip seed is sown right up to the time of the first frost.

Peas are for the most part planted

Peas are for the most part planted early, as they will not withstand the early, as they will not withstand the effect of the severe heat. Between 30 and 35 bushels of peas will be sold this spring by the seed house mentioned. As beans are sensitive to frost, the first planting is not made as early as that of the peas. The beans which are grown for "snap shorts" are likewise affected by drouth and heat becoming tough. Between and heat, becoming tough. Between 40 and 50 bushels of beans will be sold by this Topeka firm. Types of Beans.

home garden are the reen podded and wax podded sorts. Bush lima beans are gaining in popu-larity and the Topeka market has never been adequately supplied with vegetable. There are many growbie to handle these beans because they are marketed in the shelled form. but there is a good opportunity for Topeka school children who are indulging in back yard or vacant lot gardening to make good money through the sales of shelled lima beans. The bush lima beans mature much more rapidly than the pole varieties and they continue bearing for a long. period of time. They are not so easily affected by heat as are the green podded and wax podded varieties. The bush bean will succeed well in almost

While there is some onion seed planted in Topeka, results may be had more quickly through onion sets and there is less labor required in cultivation. Many home gardener has been tempted at times to use impolite language because of the tedious task of weeding by hand onions grown from seed. There are several varieties sold on the market, the white sets being a shade more expensive than the red and yellow ones, and producing an extremely mild onion. At least 500 bushels of sets are sold in Topeka in a season. An individual and there is less labor required in Topeka in a season. An individual firm sells from 100 to 150 bushels.

Two Old Standbys. It goes without saying that lettuce and radish seed is sold in large quantities, these two vegetables being grown in practically every garden. An individual Topeka firm will sell 50 pounds of lettuce seed this second sell and Manhattan Kan ridual Topeka firm will sell 50 pounds of radish of lettuce seed this season and beof lettuce seed this season and befifth annual session of the school rural leaders will hold its session further rural leaders will hold its session of the school rural leaders will hold its session will hold its session will have been school rural leaders will hold its session will have been school rural leaders will have been of lettuce seed this season and the tween 125 and 150 pounds of radish seed. If the radish seed were sold in packet form, 150 pounds would represent at least 5,000 packages, but the seed is generally sold by bulk to local customers. The average price is five Walter Burr, rural service expert in the extension division.

One Topekan estimated that approximately 500 bushels of sweet corn seed is sold in Topeka each year. One well known seed concern year. One well known seed concern disposes of between 75 to 100 bushels. While the amount of tomato seed sold in Topeka is less than that of other varieties of seed mentioned, the tomato is, nevertheless, one of the most popular vegetables in the home garden. While some local gardeners produce their own plants in hot beds or cold frames, the average amateur gardener purchases his supply of plants from a seed or grocery store. There are cer-

TRAMPLED BY

Baby Boy at Bennington Fatally Hurt by Vicious Animals.

Bennington, Kan., May 8 .- Victor, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Constable living several miles east of here was surrounded and attacked by a number of mules in a nearby pasture into which the child had strayed. The snorting and stamping of the excited mules attracted the attention of Mr. Constable who rescued his baby boy only to find the tiny body terribly lacerated, many bones broken and the skull crushed. Mr. York. Medical aid was summened and the doctors who attended the case say the recovery of the injured child is doubtful.

SCHOOL FOR RURAL LEADERS.

"Our enrollment last year was 68,

the extension division.

"Our enrollment last year was 68, but we are expecting a much larger enrollment this summer," says Mr. Burr. "The school is a ten-day session planned especially to fit the needs of rural ministers, Young Men's Christian association secretaries, county superintendents. Sunday school workers, and community welfare club leaders. Last year we emphasized the work in rural economics."

Several specialists in rural sociology have been secured to give special lectures. John L. Gillette, professor of sociology in the University of North Dakota, will give a series of eight lectures on rural sociology. Shaller Mathews, dean of the University of Chicago Divinity school, will give a strong course of seven lectures on "Applied Christian Sociology." Dr. Henry Jackson Waters, president of the college, will give two lectures upon "Rural Economics—Its Social Significance."

Caution the Children

Before the children start for the track meet at the Fair Grounds on Monday they should be cautioned as follows:

Look out for vehicles on the streets.

Watch where you step.

Don't put your arms or heads outside of street cars.

Wait until the street cars stop before you get on.

After you get on the car stay in one place.

If the children are cautioned about these safety subjects it might prevent an accident. We hope it does.
